Part I

A) Comprehension questions on the text. Read the text and choose the correct answer (0,5 points each).

In many parts of the world, and not only in the UK, "going to the theatre" is seen as an activity which only a very few people do. "Theatre" is not often seen as being a pastime that many ordinary people do. Ordinary people watch TV, or go to the cinema, or go out to eat with friends. The theatre is for rich, upper class intellectuals. Like a lot of clichés, there is some truth in this. Theatre tickets are quite expensive. They cost more than cinema tickets. Theatres which show new plays are usually only in big cities. However, even though this is true, there are a lot of theatre companies who are challenging this idea. And the way they are challenging this idea is by working with schools. In the UK, many theatre companies now have an "educational department".

One company that has made educational work their speciality is the David Glass Ensemble. The work they do, however, is quite different. The David Glass Ensemble run an ongoing project called "The Lost Child". "The Lost Child" is not a play which they travel around the world to perform. "The Lost Child" doesn't even have a script. What exactly is "The Lost Child" then? "The Lost Child" is a series of activities which actors from the David Glass Ensemble do together with children who are in difficult situations. They have worked with refugees and victims of child abuse all over the world, mostly in South East Asia, but also in Europe and South America. Three or four actors from the company spend a period of time, usually three or four weeks, starting from games, drawing and singing to develop the children's confidence and give them a sense of security. Out of the children's drawings, and from talking to them, the actors identify some of the children's problems and ideas, and then they develop a play based on these ideas. Sometimes they have made short films. Sometimes the plays are a series of sketches and songs. Sometimes the plays tell one story.
