ONE IN 209 MILLION

'Mark Goldsmith was angry when his six-year old daughter drew on a £5-note. She drew glasses and a moustache on the picture of the Queen. Mark put the note in his pocket. He thought it was useless. The next day he bought some petrol near his home, and paid with the note by mistake. Two weeks later he was 200 miles away in Harrogate, Yorkshire. He bought some food at the supermarket. He gave the cashier a £20-note and got a 5£-note in his change. To his surprise, it was his daughter's drawing on it. He brought it home and put it in a picture frame on the wall. This happened in August 2000, when there were 209 million £5-notes in Britain.'

Hi! I'm in ... with ...

Sample answer

Hi!

I'm in an Internet café in Barcelona. I'm camping with two friends from university. We've been to Holland and France. In Barcelona we've seen the Gaudi buildings but we haven't been to the top of La Sagrada Família. We're going to drive to Madrid next week.

The best things are the sun and the people. The worst thing is three friends sleeping in a small tent!

I saw Pierre in France – he's married now and has a daughter!

With love
